

LIFE'S ABOUT THE ADJECTIVES

Life's about the adjectives, it's how we know the world.
Nouns, you see, are only names, with adjectives - life is knurled.

Think about the apple,
just fruit upon the tree,
red ripe skin with tasty pulp, better lets us see.

Providing us the texture, of color if you will,
ADJ allows us space,
to give our lines the fill.

Life's about the adjectives,
spice for the written line, Verbs, you see, are motion, and index things like time.

Think about the race car, going around the lane,
zipping fast with lightning speed, better feeds the brain.

Providing us the feeling, of nature if you will,
ADJ gives the taste,
to writings we distill.

Verbs contain the action,
and nouns have the heart, adjectives add the flavor, for cooks of written art.

Life's about the adjectives, how else could it be,
that words paint the pigments, in poems for us to see?
